Art Unit: 3721

DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to applicant's RCE received on August 21st, 2007.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

- 2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:
  - A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -
  - (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 3. Claims 1 and 3-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the applicant's admitted prior art (hereinafter AAPA), JP-A-2002-337066, which is now US Patent number 6,578,750, for the same reasons set forth in paragraph 9 of the Final Rejection mailed March 26th, 2007.

Regarding the amendment to claim 3, note that a nail is positioned within the straight guide portion as shown in Fig. 6.

Regarding the amendment to claim 8, note that the guide portion especially shown in Fig. 6 can accommodate nails that have a length less than or equal to the distance measured from the leading end of the contact nose to a farthest extent of the radial enclosure.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3721

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Page 3

5. Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over AAPA, JP-A-2002-337066, which is now US Patent number 6,578,750, for the same reasons set forth in paragraph 11 of the Final Rejection, supra.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed August 21st, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant contends that the "AAPA" (in other words, Kubo) fails to disclose a contact nose including a cylindrical portion formed at its upper portion with the nose body being housed in the cylindrical portion. However, it should be noted that the nose body (including portion 26) is housed in the upper portion 37 of the contact nose 36 especially in the position as clearly seen in Fig. 6.

Applicant contends that Kubo's upper portion of contact nose 36 does not include a portion having the shape of a cylinder and instead has a C-shaped cross section due to the portion 45. However, it should be noted that upper portion 37 is mostly cylindrical. In fact, the upper portion 37 is a cylindrical portion (see designation below) with an escape opening. Therefore, the nose body is circumferentially received within the contact nose.

Application/Control Number: 10/564,761

Art Unit: 3721

Applicant contends that Kubo discloses a trigger mechanism that can only be operated through operation of both the trigger lever and the contact mechanism, which is in contrast to Applicant's claimed invention. However, it should be noted that the concept behind the contact trip mechanism in both the Kubo reference and Applicant's claimed invention is the same. Both require the pressing of a contact nose against a work piece and the actuation of a trigger lever in order to operate the tool (see page 9 lines 10-14 of Applicant's disclosure). Therefore, Kubo anticipates Applicant's trigger actuation.

Applicant contends that Kubo does not show a hollow member defining inner and outer surfaces where the inner surface includes a guide portion. However, the hollow member as referred to with reference number 45 in the previous office action, supra, includes the hollow space as designated below. The hollow member is part of the
